

NORTH WEST SUSTAINABILITY REPORT 2022

Forging Partnerships to Uplift the Community

MAYOR'S NOTE

In 2022, North West CDC has focused on uplifting the community, in order to equip residents to emerge stronger from the pandemic. We launched new assistance programmes, and enhanced our existing ones, to help residents defray daily expenses, and encourage lifelong learning by equipping them with skills to enhance their lifelong learning journey and employability.

In line with our philosophy of holistic wellness, our Healthy Living programmes not only keep residents physically fit but also provide support in mental wellness. We have been engaging participants of all ages to return to their regular physical fitness activities, organising large-scale activities to promote an active lifestyle and social cohesion in the community. As part of bonding the community, we continue to encourage our residents to practice sustainable living through simple green actions, to build a deeper green culture within the North West.

As our on-ground activities increase, we hope to connect more partners to meet the needs in the community. Whether it is health-related programmes or sustainability initiatives, passionate community partners can tap on our funding to start ground-up initiatives that would benefit the community at large. Corporate and community partners can continue to provide support to our community through giving and volunteering at our events. More participation and volunteerism will give us the multiplier effect to scale up our programmes, and help us realise our Vision to build a Caring and Healthy North West Community, together.

North West CDC has achieved much in 2022, due to the strong support of our corporate and community partners as well as volunteers. I look forward to more impactful and sustained collaborations in 2023 and beyond.

Alex Yam
Mayor of North West

I learnt the importance of recycling, how it helps to preserve natural resources and transform waste into useful products. Recycling of e-waste is often ignored because people do not have the knowledge on what electronics they can recycle. Through this programme, my school brought in e-waste bins to help promote recycling of e-waste to the students. It was insightful and knowing that I have a part to play in protecting the environment, keeps me motivated in being an avid advocate of recycling at home."
